At EAT stage ([2018] ICR 1529) Simler J also held that the Supreme Court’s judgment in Essop & Naeem [2017] ICR 640, SC, meant that insofar as the line of authority based on Armstrong [2006] IRLR 124, CA had been understood as allowing employers to rebut a finding of particular disadvantage by showing that the underlying reason for the particular disadvantage was not itself related to the protected characteristic, that could no longer be regarded as good law.
- Wilson v Health & Safety Executive [2010] IRLR 59, CA – justification where difference in pay is due to length of service.
- Guttridge v Sodexo Ltd [2009] IRLR 721, CA – application of TUPE to equality clause and effect of transfer on equal pay limitation period.

- Forstater v CGD Europe & others, [2022] ICR 1, EAT; and ET (June 2022) – Acted for the successful claimant in leading case on the threshold for protection of beliefs under the Equality Act 2010, establishing in the EAT that a belief that biological sex is a material reality that should not be conflated with gender or gender identity, is protected. Subsequently acted for the successful claimant at the substantive final hearing before the ET, establishing that she was unlawfully discriminated against because of her beliefs in the termination of her visiting fellowship and the failure to offer her employment.

An earlier hearing ([2017] EWHC 2046 (QB)) also emphasised the importance of giving 3 clear days’ notice of an application unless there are exceptional circumstances – particularly in light of the increased notice of industrial action which employers now receive under changes introduced by the Trade Union Act 2016.
