Overview

Katherine Howells specialises in personal injury, clinical negligence, travel, aviation and associated commercial proceedings. She has extensive experience acting for both Claimants and Defendants.

Katherine's domestic practice has a focus on high-value fatal and traumatic injuries sustained in road traffic and workplace accidents, particularly brain injuries, together with cases involving occupiers' and public liability issues and hospital acquired injuries. She also has a significant travel practice with a particular specialist knowledge of and interest in aviation matters. Katherine deals frequently with claims involving accidents overseas or foreign nationals injured or killed in the UK, questions of jurisdiction and applicable law, the right to cross border recovery of benefits under EC Regulation 883, claims under the Package Travel Regulations and Athens Convention, Montreal Convention passenger injury, delay and lost or damaged baggage claims, delayed and denied boarding and downgrading claims under EC Regulation 261/2004 and accidents on board aircraft (including hot air balloons and microlights) or at airports or airfields. She is also experienced in dealing with contractual and other recovery proceedings made by tour operators against foreign suppliers, aviation maintenance disputes and claims concerning IATA Ground Handling Agreements. Katherine's recent reported cases include Bianco v Bennett, Yapp v Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Donkers & BGV v Storm Aviation v Lufthansa.

Personal Injury

Katherine has been recognised for several years as a leading junior in personal injury law in the The Legal 500 Directory and was recently described in Chambers & Partners UK as a rising name in the personal injury market.
